THE STORY

Hopscotch Health is on a mission to transform rural health in America through advanced primary care. Leveraging the strength of the communities they seek to serve, combined with the incredible skill and expertise around operations and technology, they enable better things for patients, caregivers, clinicians and communities.

Office Revolution was recommended to Hopscotch Health by Oak Street Health, an existing client with clinics we've outfitted across the nation. The scope of work for this client included design, FFE specification and project management. Office Revolution produced an excellent space tailored to the Hopscotch Health environment that included comfortable seating and long-lasting surfaces meant for high-traffic areas.

Healthcare facility design and furnishings can profoundly affect people's emotions. In the past, these institutions have often not been designed intentionally to create a relaxing environment, making those in need of medical care uncomfortable and anxious. However, the new approach to designing these spaces focuses on welcoming patients into a safe, comfortable and relaxing environment that helps to reduce stress levels.

We incorporated the versatile Krug Karma chair in exam and waiting rooms. Designed with a higher seat, slim frame and a wall-saver design, Krug Karma chairs are the perfect solution for any healthcare space. To give patients additional relaxing seating options, OFS Dess loveseats were added as well. Finally, to complete the look, National Footings tables were included in various sizes throughout the space.

The future of healthcare facilities will be one that emphasizes the patient experience in all aspects. Supporting our client's vision, we provided valuable furnishings, design and project management services to help provide a safe and comfortable environment, contributing to the healing process. The client couldn't have been happier with the result - so much so that we are working together on three more clinics in North Carolina!

WHAT THEY SAY

"Our experience with Office Revolution was great! As a new, growing company, having a dedicated team that was knowledgeable, professional and reliable was a relief. While working on three concurrent renovation projects, there was always a sense of comfort knowing that any questions or concerns that arose were going to be addressed swiftly and effectively. We look forward to continuing our relationship for many projects to come!"
