THE STORY

Simplex, a trading and technology firm in Chicago's Loop, was relocating from one floor to another. Because recruiting top talent is at the forefront of their approach, they were also seeking to rebrand the office environment to accurately reflect—not only a focus on performance—but a collaborative and balanced space.

Office Revolution became involved with this project through ACRE, whom we had worked with in the past. At a time when we've seen the world experience significant delays in raw material production and logistics, ACRE knew we had the ability to combat this through deep relationships with our vendor partners. In coordination with the design firm, PBD, we ensured the client's vision was met on schedule through carefully curated product selections.

Under PBD's direction, we employed a wide range of furnishings, allowing us to adhere to our client's targeted budget as well. Teknion Tek Vue Architectural Interiors provide effortless integration with the floorplan, while complementing the client's need for private meeting space. Studio TK Bevy tables accentuate collaborative areas and enable Simplex to reconfigure the space, catering to a variety of social interactions. Nienkamper's Metronome™ table integrates flexible power and data connectivity to adequately accommodate conference room meetings as the client's organization continues to grow.

Through the duration of our company's history, we continue to prove that in-depth knowledge of our partners' product offerings is vital, but equally weighted are the commitment to communication and ability to provide comprehensive solutions no matter the obstacle.
