THE STORY

The Trust for Public Land is a young, vibrant, and energetic company that was seeking a new space representative of their culture. A company fully vested in protecting the places people care about, they aim to continuously better the land around them, particularly near cities where 80% of Americans live. This space was renovated to fit their needs with a mostly open floorplan, which supports their team building and engagement efforts. The furniture pieces are branded with their corporate colors and a large painting of their logo is featured in the space.
